Les Beaux Ecrits

(Beautiful Writings)

An old adage says, 'From small beginnings come great things.' As we begin a new school session, we begin work to bring to you the new edition of the school e-magazine for the year 2016-2017. Adorned with the writings of diligent and dedicated students, we hope that the school magazine lives up to the meaning of its title, 'Les Beaux Ecrits', which means 'Beautiful Writings' in French.

Gyan Bharati has always provided us children with inputs that enhance our intellectual, emotional and social development. Victor Hugo once wrote, 'Those who open a school door, close a prison'. Our school leads us away from the prison of ignorance and guides us towards a life filled with knowledge, compassion and integrity. The school amalgamates learning with moral values to create honest and thoughtful citizens of the world. The teachers persevere to encourage, inspire and be the guiding lights for their beloved students. GB Sites not only shine in the field of academics, but also bring pride to their school with their co-curricular achievements. Our school also has many writers, many of whom keep their talent hidden. We earnestly hope to showcase the work of such students.

As Buffy Andrews rightly put it, 'Writers see the world differently. Every voice we hear, every face we see, and every hand we touch could become story fabric.' No writer is the same in perceiving the world and articulating thoughts. Our school magazine is an eclectic mix of how different students see their worlds differently and in the process, makes others aware of different opinions and perceptions on a range of issues.

Selected articles submitted by the students will be edited and published in the school e-magazine, visible to you on the school website. The following members of the Editorial Board will be working to give this magazine its final form throughout the session 2016-17. Like the magazine, the school editorial board too is dynamic. Depending on your contribution to this effort you too could join the Editorial Board.

Message From The Chairman

Our Guiding Light

Mr. Ansal

(Chairman)

I extend my heartfelt good wishes to the students and staff of Gyan Bharati School on the occasion of the 'Annual Cultural and Sports Day' being organized on 28th Nov. 2015.

This September, the school completed 35 years of a journey that began in 1980. In these years, the school has come to be recognized as one among the leading schools of Delhi. I am proud to note that the Times School Survey rated Gyan Bharati School second among the schools of S. East Delhi, ahead of many well known names of the region. May this journey take the school to greater heights, in the com-ing years.

Gyan Bharati School, above all else, is recognized for the values it upholds as an in-stitution and in nurturing its students through various carefully chosen programmes which are woven in the school curriculum. Credit for this uncompromising vision goes to the School Director, Mr. Shekhar.

I congratulate the prize winners who will be honoured on this occasion. These students have brought laurels to their institution in scholastic and co-scholastic fields. Not only do they deserve a pat on the back for their unwavering effort, but also the guidance provided by their parents and the faculty deserves acknowledgement for the same.

I wish success to all the participating students--nearly 2000 in number as I am told, and the school faculty members, who have been working hard with them.

I look forward to being with you on the evening of 28th Nov. this year.

With Best Wishes,

From Director's Desk

There is no path to peace; peace is the path -Mahatma Gandhi

Today we stand at a moment in human history when we must realise that diversity is the lifeline of any society and acceptance and dialogue with diversity is the only option. Understanding and respecting diversity can promote brotherhood and world solidarity. This places greater responsibility on educational institutions to develop intellect and consciousness that can respond and find solutions to the pressing challenges the world faces today. Simply put, education must, above all work towards nurturing children to be good human beings.

Being among children, interacting with them and understanding their concerns and aspirations gives me hope for the future. In spite of an environment of increasing consumerism and growing money power, widespread want and violence and ever growing list of challenges faced by the world community that the young are witness to; it is heartening to come across greater sensitivity and compassion than earlier, among young people. There is idealism and commitment to reach out. There is desire to tread the uncharted path and pioneer change.

In these somewhat troubled times, it is the young who will lead the world in the near future, it is imperative that you prepare to reject insularity, practice prudence and opt for a proactive role in ushering in a new world. The world is preparing for a big change. Will you help?

Wishing you success,

With blessings,
